Finally: coloured tapware that won't wear. Titan coloured and metallic tapware features coatings that are 15 times stronger than steel itself.

Model 1 & Model 2

While some tapware seems to wear out with every turn, Titan won't. That's because all our tapware is crafted from the same durable material as our sinks: surgical stainless steel.

Great design takes everyday objects and makes them swooningly beautiful, without compromising function. That's the simple (but to us, existential) principle that underpins every coloured Titan sink.

2

Medium single bowl

Our medium single bowl is large enough for a medium-sized family, although it works even better when paired with a second bowl. For the kitchen, it can fit large pots and frying pans. And it's great for the daily rinse-to-dishwasher, one-two.

Our large single bowl takes the beautiful proportions of the Titan sink and scales it up to family size. While architect Mies van der Rohe famously remarked ‘less is more’ we respectfully disagree. Of course, the reference was to simplicity of form, not size. With a large Titan sink, you get all the simplicity and all the room to move.

Large single bowl

This version is large enough for a family with several miniature people or teenagers. The large deep bowl has around the same capacity as most two-bowl sinks, so it's perfect for soaking large pots and frying pans. And for rinsing then transferring to the dishwasher. Like our medium-size sink, it marries happily with our drainer insert.

You can be forgiven for wanting to choose more than one Titan sink. But here's some reasoning to help balance the heart, and the head: sometimes it's necessary. Like for instance, to provide greater opportunity for rinsing and soaking larger pots and pans

1+2

Small & Medium

There's also the detachable drainer to sit over the medium bowl, so the small bowl can be used for rinsing dishes, washing fruit and veg and cutlery soaking. And if you needed another reason, it takes up a small bench space footprint for greater functionality and versatility.

Sometimes a big Titan can do with a little brother to help take care of the kitchen kerfuffle.

1+3

Small & Large

Our small sink is paired with a bigger, wider sink to help with tasks like rinsing and soaking larger pots and pans. It's suited to a bigger household with greater capacity demands. This combo does it with ease, all while keeping things in the family agreeable with minimal shoulder rubbing. Well, looking nice at the very least.

It's little wonder this medium/medium configuration is our most popular. And it's not just the harmonious symmetry in design. Like-sized bowls offer a large capacity well suited to family living.

2+2

Medim & Medium

The detachable drainer sits smartly over either bowl to create a drying rack or food prep area. A larger capacity with a smaller bench space footprint is welcome, particularly when compared with traditional fixed drainer sinks.
